Texas State Law on Firearms Possession and Carry

Firearm Possession: YES by default, except if prohibited person

Rifle & Shotgun Carry: YES by default, except in prohibited places, and as long as you don't "display it in a public place in a manner calculated to cause alarm"

Handgun Carry: NO by default, except in certain places (on your property, in your vehicle if concealed, etc.); or by certain people (law enforcement, etc.); or if you have a license to carry. License holders may not carry in prohibited places or while intoxicated. (Intoxication is defined in TX Penal Code 49.01 as either one of the following: (A) not having the normal use of mental or physical faculties by reason of the introduction of alcohol, a controlled substance, a drug, a dangerous drug, a combination of two or more of those substances, or any other substance into the body. (B) having an alcohol concentration of 0.08 or more.)

If you . . .	TX law prohibiting possession:
have been convicted of a felony	You may not possess a firearm until it's been five years since release from any confinement, supervision, or parole. After that, you may not possess a firearm outside of the premises where you live. You may never apply for an LTC. If you have one, it will be revoked.
have been convicted of family violence punishable as Class A misdemeanor	You may not possess a firearm until it's been five years since release from confinement and from community supervision after the conviction.
are subject to a magistrate's temporary Protective Order	You may not possess firearms if the magistrate chooses to forbid firearms possession. (Texas Code of Criminal Procedure 17.292 -- after an arrest for an offense usually involving family violence, and by request of specified individuals)
are subject to a Family Violence Protective Order	You may not possess firearms (Texas Family Code, Title 4 -- with a ruling that family violence has occurred and is likely to occur again) You may not apply for an LTC. If you already have one, it will be suspended.
are charged with Class A or B misdemeanor or Disorderly Conduct	You may not apply for an LTC. If you already have one, it will be suspended.
